

From St. Petersburg to Notre Dame: Lectures in Russian and Soviet History

A series of lectures held in conjunction with the Special Collections exhibit in the Hesburgh Library celebrating the recent acquisition of the Polievktov-Nikoladze Family papers.

“Irakli Tsereteli and the February Revolution”

Rex A. Wade, University Professor of Russian and Soviet History, George Mason University

Thursday, September 20 at 5:00 p.m.

Opening reception and exhibit tour prior to the lecture at 3:00 p.m.

“The Perils of Memory: Mikhail Polievktov, Self-Erasure, and the Writing of Russian History after 1917”

Gary M. Hamburg, Otto M. Behr Professor of European History, Claremont McKenna College

Tuesday, October 23 at 5:00 p.m.

Exhibit tour prior to the lecture at 4:30 p.m.

“Niko Nikoladze and the Georgian Revolutionary Intelligentsia at the Turn of the Twentieth Century”

Ronald G. Suny, Charles Tilly Collegiate Professor of Social and Political History, University of Michigan

Tuesday, November 6 at 5:00 p.m.

Exhibit tour prior to the lecture at 4:30 p.m.

All lectures will be held in Special Collections (102 Hesburgh Library).

Guided tours will also be offered at 2:00 p.m. on Fridays before home football games,
October 12 (Stanford), October 19 (BYU),
and November 1 (Pittsburgh), and by request.
To schedule a tour of the exhibit, please call
Natasha Lyandres, exhibit curator, at 631-3009.